Its charitable objects express the commitment the College to theological education, ministerial formation, and to ‘supporting life-long Christian learning amongst members of Christian churches and in particular among members of Baptist churches.’

Appendix 1: The nature of the College

Regent’s Park College was founded in Stepney, London, in 1810, incorporating a Baptist Education Society formed in 1752. It became a Permanent Private Hall of the University of Oxford in 1957, with full rights to matriculate undergraduate and postgraduate students in the University and with its Fellows as teaching members of the University Faculties.

The College admits undergraduates to read for the B.A. degree in a range of Arts subjects, including and especially theology or a joint degree of philosophy with theology. Other specializations within undergraduate degrees are English, PPE, History, Classics, Law and Geography. It also admits a number of postgraduates each year to read for masters and doctoral degrees in the Humanities and Social Sciences.

As a Baptist foundation holding membership in the Baptist Union of Great Britain, an indispensable part of the work of Regent’s Park College is the training of candidates for the Baptist ministry in the United Kingdom and abroad, through both residential and church-based courses.

The College is committed to enabling all students who so desire to make connections between faith and their academic interests. The tutorial staff is fully ecumenical in its membership. The nature of the College also means that it is interested in developing an inter-disciplinary approach to the Arts, including theology consistently within this field; the statutes of the College thus state that: ‘All persons to be appointed to Official Fellowships or Research Fellowships in academic disciplines other than theology must be able to demonstrate an interest in exploring the relationship between their subject and Christian theology and ethics, a commitment to engaging in some academic research into aspects of that relationship, and a willingness to work on inter-disciplinary projects with the Tutors in theology.’
